

Gear, Gadgets and Gizmos podcast notes 3 – Rick Williams

Rick Williams runs his own business based in Brighton. The company has been around for about 20 years and supplies consultancy and training services to organisations that want to improve their employment and services provided for disabled people.

Rick went blind in his mid-40s as a result of retinitis pigmentosa and this explains his lifelong commitment and passion for ensuring that disabled people, particularly those with sight impairments, lead as independent and inclusive a life as possible.

In this edition of Gear, Gadgets and Gizmos Rick discusses a variety of things which enable him to have a very full and active life.

Rick mentioned the following products:

iPhone and Ipad has a Text to Speech Function

Free Navigation support <https://www.bemyeyes.com/>

Jaws Screen Reader <http://bit.ly/2DEWztk>

Apple Vis <https://www.applevis.com/>

Talking Microwave <http://bit.ly/2DB3K5x>

Tactile Measuring Jug <https://amzn.to/2DF77st>

Dymo Tape <http://bit.ly/2DDBfEw>

Rate it! is a product review website by and for disabled people. It's an online space for you to share views of products (specialist and mainstream), hacks, and tips to make life easier.

If you're a disabled or older person living in the UK, use your knowledge and experience to do consumer research - Join the RiDC research panel